A Thank You From President Kathy Muirhead

Hires of Haigh, Horgan and a new home on the SNHU campus highlighted a time of change for the WACNH

The last year, 2010, was a time of transition for the World Affairs Council of New Hampshire. We brought on a new Executive Director — Anna Haigh — added a second staff member to help grow the International Visitors Program — Tim Horgan — and moved to a new location on the Southern New Hampshire University campus. They have spent the past year transforming our nearly 60-year-old organization into a non-profit organization that can best meet the needs of Granite State citizens in the 21st century.

With the help of our new staff, the World Affairs Council had its busiest year yet, presenting more than two dozen world affairs luncheons, headline speakers and international films, multiple education programs for high school students and teachers and hosting 169 international visitors with the U.S. State Department. We hope you enjoy reading more about highlights from the year inside.

We are grateful to everyone who has supported the Council over the past year, including our members, donors, volunteers and speakers for making this critical work possible.

Thank you for your continued support and we look forward to continuing bringing the world to New Hampshire!

With appreciation,

Kathryn Muirhead
